U of M theater student Nikki Rodenburg and her classmates move through the BFA actor training program, which combines the artistic vision of the Guthrie Theater with the academic depth of the U of M’s College of Liberal Arts. Students have the opportunity to audition for the Guthrie while studying in the Department of Theatre Arts and Dance. So by the time they graduate, they’ll have acting experience and a head full of knowledge. Looks like the world’s a stage, and these students are ready for their big entrance. So the search continues. Learn more at umn.edu.