Professor Aaron Doering and his team are taking steps to truly understand climate change in the Arctic. Through his adventure learning program, GoNorth!, K-12 students around the world join with them via an online curriculum. By experiencing the natural world first-hand, students gain a real understanding of global climate change and collaborate on what we all can do to help. So the search continues.

More at umn.edu