The most exciting moment in learning is when a student expresses a new idea. That’s what drove Dr. Charlie Miller and his colleagues at the University of Minnesota to develop Flipgrid, a remarkably simple way for teachers and students to communicate by sharing short videos. A grade school class can now present ideas that reach thousands across the globe. Miller says, “With Flipgrid, everyone in the world can have an equal voice with an equal volume.”

umn.edu/miller